1. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

2. Claims 13,16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

These claims appear to be the same, rendering them indefinite.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 4,12,25-27, rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoshimura et al (5,009,705) in view of Santhanam et al (5,364,209).

Yoshimura et al discloses that Ti compound coatings can be used as the claimed router cutter.

Santhanam et al discloses the functional equivalency of Ti compound coatings to the coating of the claimed metal compounds.

Thus it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to substitute the claimed metal compound coatings in Yoshimura et al, as these compounds are known to be functionally equivalent to Ti compound coatings as shown by Santhanam et al.

5. Claims 5, 13,16,20,28,29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Yoshimura et al (5,009,705) in view of Vohra et al (6,183,818).

Yoshimura et al discloses an artificial diamond of the claimed substrate.

Vohra et al discloses the claimed hard carbon with the claimed roughness and stress used for tools.

Thus it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to provide the claimed hard carbon coating on the substrate of Yoshimura et al, as these hard carbon coatings are known to be used for tools as shown by Vohra et al.
